The Proposed Great Burn Wilderness

Yours to discover!

The Great Burn consists of a total of 252,000 acres of roadless national forest acres are managed by the Lolo National Forest in Montana. The boundaries of the Great Burn's wilderness area were established in 1984, a year after the Lolo Fire burned more than 100,000 acres in the area. The Great Burn has since been designated as a wilderness area with the goal of preserving its natural beauty and wildlife habitat. Today, the Great Burn is a popular destination for outdoor recreation, including hiking, camping, and wildlife viewing. Visitors are encouraged to follow Leave No Trace principles to protect the natural environment and ensure the area remains a special place for future generations. Please observe a 10-person group size limit. The Nature Conservancy Lolo, 1200 4th Ave, Missoula, MT 59802. For more information: 406-721-4220. For additional information, visit the Lolo National Forest website: www.fs.usda.gov/lolo.